Big Delegation Seeks Arkansas River Funds

By GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big delegation from Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas asked Congress today to step up appropriations for flood control and navigation work on the Arkansas River.

Headed by C. F. Byrns, Fort Smith newspaper editor, the group outlined its requests to a House Appropriations subcommittee considering appropriations for various river and water projects for the fiscal year starting July 1.

In the group were more than 50 residents of Arkansas cities along the river route plus a sprinkling of representatives from Oklahoma and Kansas.

Tomorrow the delegation is to repeat its requests to a senate subcommittee.

Reps. J. W. Trimble, W. F. Norrell and Brooks Hays, Arkansas Democrats, were among the members of Congress accompanying the delegation to the hearing today.

President Eisenhower, in his budget, made these recommendations for Arkansas and Oklahoma projects along the river:

Emergency bank stabilization $941,000; Dardanelle Lock and Dam, Ark., $2,500,000; Keystone Reservoir, Okla., $8,500,000; Oolite Reservoir, Okla., $10,000; Eufaula Reservoir, Okla., $7,500,000.

Trimble said the group favored increased appropriations for the Dardanelle and Eufaula dams and for bank stabilization.

The Oklahoma-Arkansas groups seek early completion of dams and reservoirs not only for flood control but also as part of development of the river for navigation.

The development program contemplates a 9-foot navigation channel.

Arkansas members of the delegation include:

J. T. House, J. O. Jordan, B. J. Farmer, Paul Alexander, all of Mulberry; Jeta Taylor, Homer Hilliard, Harvey Williams, Ozark; Continued on Page Three

Mandatory Vehicle Check Is Urged

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — A mandatory vehicle safety check before issuance of state license tags was urged yesterday by the Arkansas Junior Chamber of Commerce, which ended its state convention here.

The resolution requested local Jaycee chapters to write their state senators and representatives suggesting that the Legislature adopt such a law.

The delegates voted to hold next year's convention in Little Rock.

Claude McCollum Jr. of Russellville was named president of the state organization Saturday.

Dulles, Ike Confer About Soviet Note

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and a Secretary of State Dulles confer today on a new Russian note agreeing to talk about ways of policing any ban on nuclear tests.

In an initial reaction the White House welcomed that part of a note from Russian Premier Khrushchev but expressed hope any talks could be broadened to include a study of a wider range of disarmament problems.

The note was delivered to the State Department Saturday. Moscow radio broadcast a summary of it Sunday.

Moscow radio quoted the note as saying Russia would agree to the limited talks "in spite of its serious doubts." At the same time, Khrushchev called again for the United States and Russia to halt their own nuclear tests and rejected Eisenhower's proposal for an Arctic inspection zone.

Eisenhower and Dulles were expected to confer after Dulles' afternoon return to Washington. He spoke in Minneapolis Sunday for a week-long round of diplomatic conferences in Europe.

In that speech, Dulles reasserted U. S. interest in a polar inspection system "so that no one need fear that these new polar routes will be traveled by bombers or by missiles unleashing surprise attack."

But Khrushchev said the polar proposal "is designed to gain advantages for the U. S. A." and does not spring from any desire for peace.

Khrushchev, while voicing doubts, said Russia would agree to technical talks on how to police a test suspension agreement because, as the Moscow radio summary put it, "the President regards (such talks) as very important." But he added that "work should be completed in the shortest term agreed upon before-hand."

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, followed that up with a statement saying Khrushchev's note "seems to constitute recognition of the validity" of a position long held by the United States and many others "that examination of the technical aspects of disarmament measures should begin as soon as possible and might serve as the basis for progress toward agreement on disarmament."

24 Families Flooded Out at El Dorado

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — The 24 families living in the tiny Peltson community southwest of here moved out yesterday as water rose four feet deep.

Today the water was reported receding slowly. Residents hoped they could return to their homes tonight or tomorrow.

The Ouachita River, which backed its overflow into the town near the Louisiana line, was reported falling everywhere in the state.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock said the Little Red and Black rivers also were falling. The White is falling upstream from Newport and rising slightly downstream, weathermen said.

Water still was in the streets of nearby Calion, population about 500.

Houses in Calion have high foundations and no water seeped into them.

Traffic in Calion slowed through the overflow from Lake Calion which is formed by a dam on the Ouachita. The lake cannot be drained until the Ouachita River level becomes lower than the lake level.

Dozens of U. S. Engineer employees were pulled out from the Calion levee yesterday. A few remained on watch. The levee was held.

U. S. Highway 167 north of Calion was open to traffic which was routed around the town.

The families evacuated from moving out of Peltson were housed temporarily on dry ground at Hulla.

Accidents in State Claim 13 Persons

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Traffic accidents, killing eight, raised to 13 the number of persons who died violently in Arkansas during the week which ended today midnight.

Besides auto deaths, the week was marked by at least two drownings, two fire deaths and an accidental electrocution.

A head-on automobile crash near Malvern Saturday killed one person and an aged man was struck and killed by a car at Waldron.

The crash near Malvern killed Noah Bowers, about 61, who lived near Malvern. Three other persons were injured.

At Waldron, police said J. R. (Dick) Hawthorne, 77, of Waldron was struck down and killed as he crossed a downtown street.

In addition, Little Rock police reported that a 28-year-old woman, Patricia, was killed in a head-on collision at the State Highway bridge from the Main Street bridge into the Arkansas river.

She was identified as Mrs. Erma Galloway, Dean of North Little Rock, who was on a weekend pass from the hospital.

Officers said the woman, mother of four children, jumped from a railing while the bridge was jammed with Saturday afternoon traffic. Her body was not recovered.

Court Reduces Price for New Highway Land

By LEON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court, with two justices dissenting, today reduced from $45,000 to $23,265 compensation for 15.51 acres of land east of North Little Rock taken for a new highway.

If former owners of the property do not agree to the reduction, the suit will be retried in Pulaski Circuit Court, from which the Arkansas Highway Commission had appealed to the $45,000 judgment. These former owners were listed as Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Watkins and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Matthews.

The land was condemned by the commission for construction of a new main highway from Little Rock to Jacksonville. The property is near the present route of Highway 67W.

In holding that the $45,000 judgment was excessive, the Supreme Court noted that slightly more than $2,000 per acre had been awarded for the 15.51 acres taken for the highway.

The court majority said that a little more than a year before the litigation arose Matthews bought the land from Watkins as part of a 1,000-acre tract for $225 an acre.

"The record shows that both parties knew at the time of the probability that the new highway would be built," the decision said. "It further appears . . . that the parties themselves anticipated some of the land might be taken by condemnation and that they apparently thought the remuneration would not amount to more than $800 per acre. . . . In summing up we find, under the most liberal view, no substantial evidence to support a valuation of the subject land in excess of $1,000 per acre."

The majority opinion was written by Associate Justice Paul Ward, Chief Justice Carlton Harris and Associate Justice Ed F. McFaddin would have affirmed the full judgment.

The Supreme Court unanimously refused to disturb a deed by which George Hickerson conveyed a piece of Fort Smith business property to his daughter, Elma Dell Lyon, and her husband, Lloyd Lyon.

Hickerson contended unsuccessfully that the Lyons led him to think he was executing a will instead of a deed with a life estate retained by him and further that the instrument was void for lack of consideration.

Benson Thinks U. S. Economy Improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today improved economic conditions in agriculture should carry over into the fall and help Eisenhower administration backers in farm belt elections.

"I rather doubt," Benson said, "that agriculture will be the major domestic issue in the November election that some have predicted it will be."

He made those remarks during a conference in his office with members of the Newspaper Farm Editors Assn., which opened a two-day meeting here.

An editor asked Benson if he thought the turn in the agricultural situation would help re-elect some Republican congressmen who have been after his scalp.

"I'm not so sure it will," Benson replied. "Farmers are not dumb. It is difficult to demagogue on the farm issue."

He said farm prices are up 10 per cent from a year ago and are at the highest level since the administration took office in 1953.

Benson added that farm income this year is expected to be up 5 to 10 per cent from last year.

He added that he is more optimistic about the farm outlook than he has been at any time in recent years.

Lebanon Rioters Sack, Burn a U. S. Library

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rioters sacked and burned the U. S. Information Agency library in Beirut today. It was the second USA library in Beirut to suffer at the hands of antigovernment demonstrators in three days.

Rioters stirred up by foes of Lebanon's pro-Western government burned the USA library, many books and furniture Saturday in the north coast city of Tripoli.

A general strike called by the government's opponents crippled this capital and major ports in the north and south today.

One person was reported killed in brief, sporadic firing that security forces quickly halted.

Aviation Firms and Union in Agreement

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three of Southern California's Big Four Aircraft manufacturers have now reached wage agreements with unions, dispelling the threat of an area-wide industry strike.

One agreement is tentative. North American Aviation, Inc., employees will vote next Sunday.

It provides a 17- to 26-cent hourly wage increase for 15,500 employees here and 5,500 in Columbus, Ohio. Their scale now ranges from $1.65 to $2.70.

In San Diego, Convair employees voted to accept an offer of a 17 to 27-cent hourly raise in the current range in the current range of $1.20 to $2.75.

The International Assn. of Machinists said the vote was 69.3 percent for acceptance. Affected are about 20,000 employees.

The two-year agreements provide a 3 per cent wage increase in one year and include a cost-of-living escalator clause.

They followed a precedent set Saturday when Lockheed Aircraft IAM employees overwhelmingly approved a proposal calling for an hourly boost of 18 to 30 cents. The vote was announced as 7,392 to 491. Sixteen thousand workers are involved. Their former scale was $1.03 to $2.75.

Still unresolved are negotiations between Douglas Aircraft Co. and two unions.

The Lockheed vote does not affect negotiations between the IAM and Lockheed's missile division and its Marietta, Ga., plant.

Counterfeiting Charge Filed Against Pair

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Charges of possessing and passing counterfeit money will be filed against a Fort Smith couple today, a Secret Service spokesman here said this morning.

About 50 counterfeit $20 bills may have been passed in Little Rock Saturday, Detective Capt. A. M. Haynie said yesterday only seven bills have been found.

Held in city jail were James M. Mullen, 37, and his wife, Mary G. Mullen, 33. They were arrested late Saturday and were booked on open charges.

The Secret Service spokesman said the couple would be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Lee Miles.

Meanwhile, a man identified as William E. Smith, about 24, was held on an open charge at Fort Smith in connection with the case.

At Fort Smith, Sheriff Prentice Maddux said the Mullen couple and Smith all lived at the same address there. He said the couple was traveling in a car owned by Smith when arrested at Little Rock.

Maddux said Smith was arrested yesterday. The sheriff said that when he and a deputy went to Smith's house, the man leaped out a rear window but they apprehended him and took him to Sebastian County Jail.

Little Rock detectives said the Mullen couple was arrested after a liquor store owner reported an

Braves Seem Headed for Another Flag

By CHUCK CAPALDO

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "Who," the visiting writer asked with the air of a prosecuting attorney, "is going to beat the Milwaukee Braves anyway?"

His listeners offered feeble protests. "It's early yet," said one. "The Pirates and the Giants look pretty good," said another. "The Cards are bound to improve," said a third.

But they knew what he was driving at as well as he did. And they agreed with him.

The Braves, with all their bumps, bruises and anemic batting averages, look mighty good. In fact, they can't even beat themselves no matter how hard they try.

Take Sunday's game with the Cincinnati Redlegs, for example. The world champions won it 7-6 for their seventh victory in a row and 15th in 22 games to tighten their grip on first place in the National League. Last year the Braves also won 15 of their first 22 games.

It also was their fourth straight in five starts against the Redlegs — their favorite pasties last season. These same Redlegs came to town after ramming an eight-run ninth inning down the throats of the ambitious Chicago Cubs.

Two routine outfield flies almost put Cincinnati in the victory column, though.

West Covington, playing left field on a leg and a bat, and shortstop Johnny Logan let two fly balls drop between them for hits and eventually, runs. Covington got a late start on both balls because of his injured left knee.

The second one, off the bat of Frankie Robinson, dropped in for a double. Steve Bilko's single drove in Robinson with the run that put the Redlegs ahead 5-4 in the eighth.

Del Crandall, who won Sunday's game with a two-run pitch-hit homer off Harvey Haddix, slider in the seventh, won Sunday's with a three-run double off Turk Lown's slider in the eighth. Manager Fred Haney is well aware that Covington is a deficit on defense. When the Braves are ahead, Haney sends in a substitute for him. But when they are behind, as they were Sunday until the eighth, he must keep Covington in for his offensive value.

None of his other outfielders, including Hank Aaron, are doing much damage up at the plate these days. Aaron is hitting .255, Harry Handberg .130, Bob Harlin .188, and Andy Pafko .172. Covington is swinging at a .417 clip, with four homers in only eight games.

Cancelling out these obvious weaknesses are great pitching and a strong bench — the same ingredients that went into making the pennant last year.

William R. Miller, governor of Arkansas from 1877-1881, was the first native of Arkansas to hold this office at this time. He was born at Batesville November 23, 1823.

Aged Man Beaten Robbed of $260

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A 91-year-old man with extensive real estate holdings was beaten and robbed of $260 yesterday, police reported.

M. D. Springfield told police two Negroes pummeled him in the stomach as he was about to enter his house and fled with a sack containing his collection money.

Detectives said the attackers apparently had previously searched Springfield's house since a bed had been torn apart and the house ransacked.

Springfield, whose brother Sam was killed in a robbery in 1944, refused to see a doctor, officers said.

NO PICKUP

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — About 50 counterfeit $20 bills were passed in Little Rock Saturday. Detective Capt. A. M. Haynie said yesterday. But only seven of the bills have been found.

Haynie said police here are holding a Fort Smith couple in connection with the bogus money and a man was being questioned at Fort Smith.

The two held here were booked at police headquarters as James M. McMullen, 37, and his wife, Mary G. McMullen, 33. They were arrested late Saturday and held on an open charge.

The captain identified the man arrested at Fort Smith as William E. Smith, about 24. However, a Secret Service agent questioning a suspect at Fort Smith declined to discuss the matter.

The McMullens, who were picked up after a liquor store operator reported an attempt to pass a phony bill, denied any knowledge of the counterfeit money, Haynie said.

The officer speculated that investigation would uncover a trail of counterfeit money over a large area of the nation, but he said authorities did not believe there was a connection with approximately $120,000 in counterfeit bills recently seized by Memphis police.

Asks Congress to Increase Flood Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. James W. Trimble (D-Ark.) urged today that Congress go beyond President Eisenhower's budget recommendations and provide construction funds for the proposed Beaver Dam on Arkansas' White River.

Eisenhower had recommended $250,000 planning funds.

Trimble, in testimony before a House Appropriations subcommittee considering funds for water projects in the fiscal year starting July 1, asked approval for an additional $750,000 to start construction in the coming fiscal year since the $250,000 planning funds will enable Army Engineers to complete the advance engineering.

The proposed Beaver Dam, he said, is above the big Table Rock and Bull Shoals reservoirs and would assure a more stable flow of water for both.

"It is estimated this will increase the power capacity of these two projects by about 20,000 kilowatts," he said, "and increase their power production by about 20 million kilowatt hours of electricity annually."

Trimble also said the dam would provide additional power of its own and would help in controlling floods.

"The people in this area are almost 100 per cent in favor of this project," Trimble said. "There is no organized opposition. A few of the land owners whose land will be inundated prefer to keep their land, but they are not embittered."

DOROTHY DIX

Maybe Mom Is Lonely But Is She Senseless?

Dear Dorothy Dix: Three years ago I was a lonely widow with two small children. Then I met a marvelous man who loves me all and we were married. Everything would be perfect bliss except for a problem concerning my mother. She has never made any attempt to get along with my husband, though he has been pleasant and agreeable to her. In spite of this fact, she wants to come live with us. She too, is a widow, but has a very good job, a nice house, friends and activities, but she says she's lonely. I know it would never work, but how can I tell her?

Dear Fern: In plain, unvarnished English, your husband is being a good father to your two children, a fine husband to you, and it would be expecting too much for him to be a landlord and son-in-law to a woman who dislikes him. Patience is a virtue that can't stand overstraining.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a high school sophomore with ambitions for a college education. My father would struggle to send me to college if he knew that's what I wanted, but he's sacrificed so much for me already, I hate to ask for more. Do you know anything about the possibilities of working my way through? C. C.

Dear C. C.: A hard-working, ambitious young lady like you should be sure to win a full, or partial scholarship. Write for my booklet, You Too Can Win A Scholarship, which gives the names of several publications that furnish complete information on the subject. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My mother has been in this country 16 years and speaks English creditably well. However when she comes to visit me, she insists on speaking our native language, which my husband doesn't understand at all. This leads to some embarrassing moments. How can I avoid them?

Dear Greta: Mom is just using any trick in the bag to get your undivided attention. Since she isn't around very much, what's the harm in letting her get away with it? Teach hubby your native tongue. Another language is always an asset and he has a perfect opportunity to add to his culture. He should have done it before this.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have four small children and my husband says he doesn't love me anymore. He wants his freedom. He says if I get my old job back and he gives me a little money each week I can get along. I'm only 22.

Dear W. W.: It won't be that simple for hubby to shelve his responsibilities. Who will take care of the children while you're at work? I hope he's not planning on dragging your mother into the act. Someone must tell him firmly but convincingly that there are five reasons he can't go back to the carefree days of bachelorhood.

a proper acknowledgment. Chancellor Franklin Wilder held the deed void between the parties and was upheld by the high court. The Supreme Court said that at one time Mr. and Mrs. Lyon had owned a half interest in the property but that in 1948 they decided their share to Hickerson, the co-owner. The parties disagreed as to whether there was any consideration for this transfer.

When the deed from Hickerson to his daughter and son-in-law was executed, "Hickerson was an experienced businessman in his early 60s," the court said. "He had previously bought and sold real estate on several occasions. It cannot be said that he was under his daughter's influence. To the contrary, his seems to have been the more forceful character of the two. The other two persons at the execution of the deed — Elma Dell and the lawyer — both testify that the nature of the conveyance was fully explained to Hickerson and that he understood its effect. In the circumstances it was not unnatural for Hickerson to give vested remainder to his daughter and son-in-law in view of Hickerson's apparent dispute with his second wife and in view of the Lyons' original interest in the property."

River Gives Up Body of Victim

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP)—The body of a 32-year-old Newport man who drowned in the White River here April 15 has been recovered, coroner Otis Dillinger reported yesterday.

The coroner said Robert S. Simons' body was found Saturday by a commercial fisherman, floating in the swift current of the White about 23 miles downstream from the point where the victim entered the water.

Seek Names of Integration Foes

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Two Negro attorneys asked the Little Rock School Board in federal court today for the identities of persons the board said resisted integration last fall.

They filed a series of questions based on the board's petition to delay integration at Central High School.

The attorneys are Wiley A. Branton of Pine Bluff and Thurgood Marshall of New York. They filed the petition by mail.

U. S. District Judge Harry J. Lemley has set a hearing June 3 on the School Board's petition. The list of questions today is

Stan the Man Collects 5, Moves Nearer Goal

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stan (The Man) Mustel is still shy two hits of becoming the eighth player in major league history to reach the 3,000-hit plateau but anyone who says he isn't the greatest star ever spawned by the National League is certain to get an argument.

The brilliant St. Louis Cardinal first baseman almost made it Sunday. He rapped five hits with ninth inning rallies to overcome the Chicago Cubs twice, 8-7 and 6-5 for a sweep of the four game series. One of his hits was his fifth home run of the campaign.

Mustel ranks first in the league in lifetime total bases (5,100), first in long hits (1,171), second in extra bases (2,100), second in runs batted in (1,589), second in home runs (206), second in doubles (202), fifth in runs scored (1,077) and fourth in hits.

Milwaukee ran its winning streak to seven straight with a 7-6 triumph over Cincinnati. Pittsburgh moved into a second place tie with San Francisco, one game behind the Braves, sweeping a twin bill from Philadelphia 10-4 and 1-0 in 11 innings. Rain forced postponement of the Giants-Los Angeles game in San Francisco.

Irv Keren and Hobie Landrith delivered game-winning ninth inning hits as the Cards won their third and fourth in a row after seven straight losses. Keren's drive off the right field screen scored Curt Flood after Del Ennis had singled in the tying run in the eighth. Landrith drove in two with a bases loaded single and a third run, the winning tally, crossed the plate when Bobby Thomson fumbled the ball in center.

Bob Porterfield, a waiver purchase from Boston, pitched a brilliant 11-inning shutout in a duel with Philadelphia's Curt Simmons as the Pirates swept a four-game series with the Phillies. The 33-year-old righthander allowed eight hits for his first victory of the year. R. C. Stevens, three a strikeout victim of Simmons, singled in the winning run, after Dick Groat opened the 11th with a single and advanced to second on a sacrifice.

Del Crandall's three-run double in the eighth overcame a 6-4 Cincinnati lead and gave the Braves their fourth victory in five games with the Reds.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Weeding out the potential field for Saturday's Preakness begins in earnest today. When it settles down, a couple of horses facing strong recent tradition, Tim Tam and Lincoln Road, undoubtedly will stand out the best.

Tim Tam is bucking the history of the 8 post Preakness Stakes while the records are encouraging for Lincoln Road.

Only 11 3-year-olds since 1975 have won both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, the last being Citation in 1948. Eight went on to take the Belmont and the triple crown, Citation also being the latest.

On the other hand, several colts have won the Preakness after finishing second in the Derby, including Nashua, Native Dancer and Cane.

Tim Tam licked Lincoln Road by half a length in this year's Kentucky Derby, the second time this year the two colts finished that way. The other was in the Florida Derby.

Calumet trainer Jimmy Jones of Tim Tam is well aware the Preakness "will be the tough one to get" in his quest for his stable's third triple crown winner.

The Preakness prize money now totals $121,950 with each entry and starter to add $1,000. The winner will get all that's left after $35,000 is distributed among the 2nd, 3rd and 4th finishers. Blumberg thought enough of the prospect to pay a late entry fee of $7,500 compared with the regular $500.

Six other Derby starters including the glamorized Silky Sullivan are expected for the Preakness. The others are Maine Chance, Farm's Noreddin, Langgotten, Farm's Goner Fishin', George Lewis Martin's Bullish and Mrs. A. Gannull's Chance II Tony.

SHED BY SHAH?—Reports from Tehran say that the Shah of Iran and his childless wife, Queen Soraya, above, will be legally separated in the near future. A formal divorce is expected to follow. The 35-year-old Soraya and the 39-year-old shah were married Feb. 12, 1951, in what was hailed as a love match.

BREATHTAKING GETUP—A cry baby for science, volunteer coed Kay Kerdmon models the plastic mask she'll wear as part of a new air pollution experiment on the University of California's Riverside campus. Smog will be pumped inside the mask, and also applied to plants to determine if eye irritation and crop damage result from the same chemicals in the combination of smoke and fog. Kay will breathe the pure air through the respirator she's holding.

Matter of Fact

For hundreds of years lace has been considered one of the most beautiful and luxurious articles made by man. The making of lace came from two much older arts—knitted nets and embroidery. Nets of knotted thread have been found in ancient Egyptian tombs and Swiss lake dwellings. Embroidery, the decoration of cloth with threads, was a highly developed art centuries ago in China, India, Persia and the Near East.

THE STORY: In order to obtain information about a missing manuscript exposing a Central American dictatorship, Milo March, insurance detective has been put in touch with the underdog of the small republic. He meets Senora Moreno, the wife of the author of the manuscript which was insured for $75,000.

CHAPTER V

After we were seated, I said to Mrs. Moreno, "You know I said from the Intercontinental Insurance Company and I am here because of the insurance on your husband's book."

"It is Jaime that I want back," I understood," I said. "The smaller man said, 'If Dr. Moreno was taken to our country, as we think, the police of course can do nothing about following. But there would be no such restrictions on insurance detectives. So I suggested that the insurance money be asked for and perhaps that would make the insurance company do something. You see,

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 48

BE IT RESOLVED, by the House of Representatives of the State of Arkansas, and by the Senate of the State of Arkansas, a majority of all members elected to each House agreeing thereto:

That the following is hereby proposed as an Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, and upon being submitted to the electors of the State for approval or rejection at the next general election for Representatives and Senators, if a majority of the electors voting thereon, at such an election, adopt such amendment, the same shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, to-wit:

SECTION 1. Any city of the first or second class, any incorporated town, and any county, may issue, by and with the consent of the majority of the qualified electors of said municipality or county, voting on the question at an election held for the purpose of issuing such bonds, provided, however, that the said municipality or county may exchange such bonds for bonds of like amount, rate of interest, and length of term.

SECTION 2. Such bonds shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed six per centum (6%) per annum and shall be sold only at public sale after twenty (20) days advertisement in the newspaper having a bona fide circulation in the municipality or county issuing such bonds; provided, however, that the said municipality or county may exchange such bonds for bonds of like amount, rate of interest, and length of term.

SECTION 3. To provide for the payment of such bonds, principal and interest, as they mature, the municipality or county may levy a special tax payable annually, not to exceed five (5) mills on the dollar, in addition to the regular tax levied for the purpose of securing and developing the industry within or near the said municipality holding the election, or within the county holding the election.

SECTION 4. Such bonds shall be sold, maturing annually, after three years from date of issue, and shall be paid as they mature, and no such bonds shall be issued for a period longer than thirty (30) years.

SECTION 5. The governing body of the municipality or county holding an election held for that purpose and shall expend economically the funds so received.

SECTION 6. The election on the issuance of such bonds shall be held at such time as the governing body of the municipality or county may designate by ordinance, or as the County Judge of the county may designate by order, which ordinance or order shall state the sum total of the issue, the dates of maturities thereof and shall fix the date of election so that it shall not occur earlier than thirty (30) days after the passage of the said ordinance or the granting of said order. The said election shall be held and conducted, the vote thereof canvassed, and the result thereof declared under the law and in the manner now or hereafter provided for county elections when the election is held by a county, so far as the same may be applicable, except as herein otherwise provided. Notice of the election shall be given by the Mayor of the municipality or by the County Judge of the county by advertisement, weekly for at least four times in some newspaper having a bona fide circulation in the said municipality or county, with the last publication to be not less than ten (10) days prior to the date of the said election. Only qualified electors of the said municipality or county shall be eligible to vote at the said election. When an election is held by the county, any city or town within such county may also vote at the said election.

SECTION 7. The provisions of this Amendment which shall not have effect until the date of the election held by the county, then the electors of such city or town shall not be eligible to vote at the said election, the result of the said election shall be proclaimed by the Mayor of the municipality or by the County Judge of the county, and the result as proclaimed shall be conclusive, unless attacked in the municipal court of such city or town, or in the county court of such county, within ten (10) days after the date of such proclamation.

SECTION 8. All provisions of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas in conflict herewith, are hereby repealed.

"I am being frank with you," I appreciate that," I said. "You understand that I must go looking for the manuscript. If, however, I should also see the man I will not ignore him."

"We can ask for no more," he said with a sigh.

"How large a manuscript was it?" I asked.

"The usual size sheets of paper. I believe there were about 400 pages."

"If what you say about the American ruler is true," I said, "then doesn't it seem logical to assume — you will forgive me, Senora — that Dr. Moreno is no longer alive?"

"Perhaps," he said. "There is, however, a small chance that he might be in prison. Torcido has sometimes kept his enemies as prisoners for a long time before killing them."

"Wouldn't he also destroy the manuscript?"

"You see, Senor, Torcido has ruled so long and his men know his methods so well that it is not always necessary for him to tell them to do a thing. It is said that Torcido himself now that he is older would prefer to have less bloodshed. Perhaps this is so and that he does not always know what has been done."

"I see," I said. "Do you know El Nariz?"

"Those of us who have talked to El Nariz are now dead."

"Anyway I look at it," I said, "it's going to be a big order. There may be times when I will need help there—maybe nothing more than information. Can you put me in touch with any of your people down there?"

The three of them exchanged glances, but it was the little man who was the spokesman. "The few who still fight are always in danger," he said. "We trust Lieutenant Rockland and he in turn seems to trust you. Still we cannot take the responsibility of giving you the names of people. But perhaps something can be done. Where will you be staying?"

"What's the best hotel in Puerto Torcido?"

"The Torcido Hotel," he said with a very grin. "All right. We will see there. He will identify himself to you with the same sentence you used in coming here and with his name. He will be a Senor Fulano."

"I guessed, Senor Fulano is the name as saying in English. Mr. So-and-so, or Mr. What's-his-name."

"They all said good night and the small man escorted me to the door. There was little traffic on the street. There was a taxi parked about a block away, its lights came on and it moved forward."

"It rolled up to me and stopped. I was about to reach for the door handle when something stopped me. I was never sure what, but I think it may have been the glint of the street light on metal in the front seat. I threw myself backwards and toward the rear of the cab. At the same moment, there was a streak of fire and the roar of a gun from the front seat. Somewhere behind me glass shattered."

I half rolled and half scrambled around behind the cab. There was another shot and the bullet bounced off the sidewalk and screamed into the distance. Then I was behind the cab where I couldn't see me."

The cab leaped forward. I stayed where I was, lying in the gutter, and yanked my gun from its holster. I steadied my arm on the roof of the cab.

the street and pulled the trigger slowly. I was aiming for the tires. I made it just before the cab reached the corner. It veered sharply as the tire exploded then subsided across the street. It bounced off a fire hydrant and careened into a tree.

A moment later I heard the cab door open, but it was on the far side and I couldn't see the man. "Hasta luego, Senor," a voice called. It was not much more than a whisper, but it carried to me clearly and I recognized it as the voice I'd heard on the phone.

I still had my gun raised but now there was nothing to see. Somewhere back of me was the sound of a window going up and the excited babble of voices. In the distance a siren suddenly wailed. I put my gun away and ran around the corner.

I found another cab. When I was still gunning for me and I lived I had the taxi stop at the corner. I didn't know if El Nariz was still gunning for me and didn't think he knew where I lived, but I wasn't going to take chances.

Upstairs, I looked up Johnny Rockland's home phone number and dialed it.

"Don't tell me you already have it solved," he said.

"I tried," I said. "About 30 minutes ago there was a shooting down by Washington Square. Nobody was hurt and both men escaped before the cops got there. The only casualty was a tire of a taxi which then piled into a tree. The man who was driving the cab was El Nariz. I thought you might like to know."

"Nice of you," he said dryly. "I suppose I shouldn't ask who the second man was. Just in case it's a friend of mine I'd have to pull in for questioning."

"You can't expect me to know everything," I said. "In fact, there are a few things I'd still like to know."

"That figures," he said. "Some time I wonder whether the New York City Police Department works for the taxpayers or for Milo March. What do you want to know?"

"Where'd the taxi come from? Maybe there will be fingerprints in it if you're lucky."

"It was a half hour before my phone rang. I scooped up the receiver. It was Johnny Rockland. 'My wife hates you,' he announced. 'You've ruined a perfectly good 30 minutes of a bridge game. But you know, you were right. There was a gun fight down there.'"

"Imagine that," I said. "The taxi was stolen. It had been reported about two hours earlier. The local witnesses weren't any help at all. The I.D. boys haven't finished going over the cab yet. They say it's full of prints, but they don't think we'll get anything from them because the steering wheel is clean. Wiped clean. Two '32 automatic shells on the floor in the front of the cab. Won't mean a thing."

"Well, it was a good try," I said. "I got a theory. You want to hear it?"

"Go ahead," he said. "He made his try and missed," I said. "I don't think he'll try again—here. Now he'll go home and wait for me. So if you're right about how he comes and goes, this might be the time to start keeping an eye on Perrola."

"As much as I hate to admit it," he said, "maybe you do have an idea there."

It was another 40 minutes before the phone rang again. I picked it up on the first ring. "It was a good idea, but too late," he said slyly. "Perrola took off in his personal plane two hours ago. Said he was heading home. Hasn't been heard from since."

"Two hours ago?" I said. "That must mean El Nariz is still hanging around."

"Not necessarily. Perrola couldn't take El Nariz as a passenger from Idlewild. What he could do is land at some small field, maybe in New Jersey, and wait. In that case, El Nariz would be on his way now. If not already there. It's almost two hours since he took a crack at you."

"You're probably right," I said. "Tell your wife I'm sorry I busted out the evening."

"I never liked bridge anyway. I was up fairly early the following morning. Pan American told me it would take me nine hours to reach Puerto Torcido, changing planes at Miami. I made a reservation on the flight for the next morning. Then I dug out the slip of paper and dialed Mrs. Moreno's number."

"Hello," a man's voice said cautiously.

"This is Milo March," I said. "I remembered what that Johnny Rockland had done the day before. I want to ask you something, but if you'd like to make sure you can call me back. I'm at home and the number is listed in the phone book. Do you want to do that?"

"SI," he said.

I hung up and lit a cigarette while I waited. The phone rang almost immediately.

"Pedro Lora here. You wished something?"

"You saw Moreno's manuscript?" I asked.

"Many times," he said. "He was kind enough to ask me to read it and to make suggestions."

"Good," I said. "How was it bound?"

"It had a light blue cover. That is a single blue sheet on the front and one on the back. It was fastened together with little clasps running through holes punched in the paper."

"Exactly," I said. "Anything else?"

"I phoned Intercontinental and asked for Martin Raymond. 'How are you this morning, Milo?' he asked, coming on. 'Did you read your morning newspaper?'"

"Yes," I said. "Did you happen to notice a little item about a mysterious gun battle down in Greenwich Village?"

"I believe I did notice it," he said. "Well, that was your informant trying to give you what he had for me."

"There was a moment of silence. 'I just didn't realize—'"

"You just didn't realize that Torcido was dangerous," I said. "Well, he is. So after this if anyone calls up asking questions tell them that I've been taken off the case. Tell them I spent for much money. Which reminds me, I'm going to the Mexican Republic tomorrow."

"Get $1,000 ready for me. I'll pick it up some time today. For expenses."

In this business you meet a lot of people. Some of them are pretty unusual — and convenient at times. I was going to see a man who just about headed the list in both ways. His name was Allister Laird. He was an ex-con, having served a term for forgery some 20 years ago.

He had a legitimate business, but the police department was full of men who declared that this was only a front for a much larger business. He always had a bunch of ex-cons working for him and among them you could find some of the finest craftsmen the underworld had ever produced. But nothing had been pinned on him or his employees in 20 years.

Allister Laird had an antique store on Third Avenue. It was a big store and back of it was a huge warehouse filled to the eaves with antiques. The warehouse also contained a carpentry shop and a well-equipped workshop. The store and warehouse were filled with genuine antiques of all kinds, ranging from rare manuscripts and coins through ancient armor up to very fine furniture. But if you wanted some special antique and he didn't have it he'd make it for you in a few days.

Some of the best homes boasted Allister Laird's imitations and never knew it. But even then there was nothing that the police could pin on him. His approach was exactly the same whether the piece in question was genuine or fake. "This," he would say, "appears to be authentic, but I wouldn't know. I am just a shopkeeper."

The taxi deposited me in front of the store and I went in. Allister was there, paying court to a woman who was looking at chairs.

The woman finally left and he came over. "Were you looking for something?" he asked gravely as if he'd never seen me before.

"Something cheap," I said. "In an old Spanish manuscript. It wouldn't have to pass inspection by experts, but I'd like it to look fairly good."

"Let me see," he said. "I believe I have an original Cervantes somewhere."

I shook my head. "Something in the Americas if possible. The trouble is I don't have time to wait for you to make one."

"You sound like a policeman," he said coldly. "As a matter of fact I believe I do have something else, the remnant of an ill-fated venture that never materialized. The gentleman for whom it was intended has—er—retired."

"Sing Sing?"

"Something like that," he said. "It'll be right back, Milo." He went through the rear door that led to the warehouse.

I walked around, looking at things and waiting. I'd pretty well covered the shop by the time the door opened and Allister came back in. He was carrying a manuscript that looked to be about the right size.

"You are in luck," he said. "Not only do I have such a manuscript but it turns out to be a rare one. An account of his voyage and landing in America by Christopher Columbus."

"By whom?" I asked.

"By Christopher Columbus. It seems to be even written in his own hand. See for yourself."

I took it from him. The cover on it made no attempt to be anything but modern, but the pages inside were properly aged, the Spanish was old and the writing faded.

"Very nice," I said. "Frankly, I'm not sure that Columbus could even write."

"A more detail," he said loftily. "He probably learned on the way over."

"How much?"

"Fifty," I said.

He looked pained. "Only a man with no soul would think of offering a paltry $50 for a genuine Columbus."

"It's not even genuine Columbus," Ohio," I said.

"I am a man crucified upon the parsimony of my friends," he complained. "Very well, I will not haggle."

The Cumberland Presbyterian Church was the first in the state to open a denominational college, Cane Hill College having been founded in 1834. This school closed in 1889. The Arkansas Cumberland College was established in Clarksburg in 1891. The present name, "College of the Ozarks" was adopted in 1921.
